Pelham City Schools students, parents, and employees,

In a press conference held today at 4 pm, Governor Kay Ivey announced that Alabama schools will remain closed and transition students to at-home instruction for the rest of the 2019-2020 school year. This latest decision was made due to continued concerns for the health of our communities in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.

School superintendents, along with all of you, learned this information during today's press conference. We will be meeting with Dr. Eric Mackey, our State Superintendent of Education, on Friday to learn additional details about the framework and plans being made at the state level.

Please know our students' well-being and education are of the highest priority. Our school system leaders will work diligently to implement plans in accordance with state directives and address issues that affect our students and employees.

Even in these uncertain times, we can draw on the strength and support of our Pelham community. We remain committed to inspire, empower, and achieve despite the challenges before us.

Please continue to monitor your email and pelhamcityschools.org for the latest updates and announcements. Thank you for your continued patience and support.

Respectfully,

Dr. Scott Coefield
Superintendent
Pelham City Schools
